KEYS Report

Almost Done...

Wow! It’s been a long journey, and this phase at least, is almost over. As I write this, we are very near 100% of our budget and we are looking forward to being full time at the school for the fall semester. Thanks so much to each of you who has supported us faithfully as we have itinerated. Thanks to everyone who has been such a blessing in keeping us going with prayers and words of encouragement. Thanks especially to God who has been so faithful and provided everything we have needed even in the face of severe testing through a time of physical illness during 2008. Thanks to the faculty and staff at Native American Bible College who have so patiently anticipated our arrival and seemed so excited for us each time we visited. Can we as missionaries EVER say “thank you!” enough to those who love us and give so sacrificially to make this all possible? Probably not... but thanks anyway!

Jim

2009 Graduation...

Our 2009 graduation was an awesome event with a house full of family and friends of our graduates on hand. We had some very hard working young men who received their well earned diplomas after completing a rigorous four year program of studies in bible and ministry. Each of them are already involved in ministry and the preaching of God’s word.

On Campus. . .

Well, actually a few thousand miles from the campus. I have said in the past that one of the things I love about our school is that we are not just on the receiving end of missions. We are supported by missions, but a significant part of our focus is the training and sending of missionaries as well. This spring, several of our students and faculty traveled to Quito, Ecuador and the surrounding area where they were involved in various aspects of ministry to these precious people of the Andes. God not only worked wonderfully through our team as they ministered, but did a real work in team members lives as well.
